

Brownfields.com Announces Partnership with Canada's Leading Brownfields Resource Web Site

Partnership creates a worldwide brownfields Internet resource network in the United States, Canada, Great Britain and Europe.

ARLINGTON, Virginia - On the heels of new Brownfields legislation signed into law by President George W. Bush, Brownfields.com, the United States' leading Web portal for brownfields urban redevelopment information, today announced a new partnership with Canada's aboutREMEDIATION.com to offer the brownfields industry a wealth of international resources.

aboutREMEDIATION.com is a one-stop online resource on brownfields site remediation, redevelopment, property cleanup information, technologies and solutions for the Canadian market. The private and public Web portal is produced in cooperation with EcoLog Information Resources Group, Environment Canada - Ontario Region, Government of Ontario, Ontario Centre for Environmental Technology Advancement (OCETA) and Royal LePage Commercial Inc.

The new partnership between Brownfields.com, aboutREMEDIATION.com, and BrownfieldSites.com, Great Britain and Europe's leading brownfields portal, creates a worldwide network of Internet sites offering free resources for the industry's public and private sectors.

Brownfields.com announced their partnership with BrownfieldSites.com last fall at the Brownfields 2001 Conference in Chicago, Illinois.

While each of the three Web sites in the network will maintain its current identity, all will be prominently linked to the other for quick user access.

Said Brownfields.com Founder Bill Cocose, "Our exciting new partnership with aboutREMEDIATION.com will certainly benefit U.S. and Canadian stakeholders in the sharing of brownfields resources and information. Add to that our partnership with the UK and Europe's BrownfieldSites.com, and we're pleased to offer industry stakeholders access to the most complete international resources on brownfields site redevelopment and remediation in the world. All of us in the global brownfields industry can learn a great deal from one another."

"We are pleased to be developing an international alliance with Brownfields.com and BrownfieldSites.com as the exclusive Canadian Web portal," said Tammy Lomas-Jylha, Project Manager of aboutREMEDIATION.com. "Our partnership will develop global awareness of the international brownfields redevelopment efforts, and provide information on the tools needed to move forward in the restoration and reuse of industrial lands. We believe that this alliance will be beneficial for each of our Web sites, from a promotional perspective and potential for future joint initiatives and opportunities in the brownfields industry."

BrownfieldSites.com Founder Ian Humphreys said, "Our partnership with Brownfields.com and aboutREMEDIATION.com allows our Web sites to work together for the good of the global brownfields industry. Brownfields stakeholders now have access to both national and international information on property cleanup evaluation, assessment tools, legislation, regulations and policies, legal and financing options, news and case studies, and new available technology. It's a great asset for everyone in the industry to think on a global scale about this important issue."
